President's Message

As January comes to a close, I want to take a look back at 2019 and also look ahead to 2020. In October, after serving CLF for many years in many capacities, President Sue Yerby had to step back from her duties due to health issues. As your new President, I find myself starting the year with exciting opportunities to serve and support CLF and Clayton Library in new ways.

Since taking on the role of President, I've had a steep learning curve, but great support from our excellent Board and superior library staff. I pledge to do my very best to carry out the vision of CLF's founders and subsequent leaders to enrich the resources and facilities of Clayton Library, support the library staff, and keep our members informed about library and Board activities. We are grateful to Sue Yerby for the years of dedicated service she has given to Clayton Library and Clayton Library Friends, and hope to see her back with us soon.

Last October, the Texas State Genealogical Society's annual meeting was held at the Omni Hotel in west Houston. I know that many of you attended and also volunteered to help at the conference and at our CLF table. CLF's exhibit beautifully highlighted Clayton Library to visitors from all over Texas and some other states. In addition to introducing many people to the Library for the first time, the book sale also provided income to the CLF by selling duplicate donated books. That revenue is used to support the Library's acquisition of new books and other needs. The organization and setup of that entire exhibit and book sale is possible because of the leadership and dedication of Pat Metcalfe and other volunteers. Thanks to all of you who helped out. And, congratulations to Sue Kaufman, Clayton Library Manager, who was named a TxSGS Fellow at the conference.

Looking ahead to 2020, I am excited about the programs that have been planned. The content of the February meeting is described elsewhere in this newsletter. We are pleased to partner with our neighbor, the Holocaust Museum, and also with the African American Historical and Genealogy Society. This joint event showcases Clayton Library to a wider audience that hopefully will bring in new visitors. The Holocaust Museum has wonderful event facilities that can accommodate a larger audience. I hope you will join us. While you are in the neighborhood, please take a few minutes to check out the progress of the renovation of the first floor of our Clayton Library and learn about the technical upgrades, which are still in progress.

| 10:30 – 11:30 a.m. | Incorporating Oral History into Your Research -- Ari Wilkins
Oral history can dramatically enhance your genealogical research. Not only can it provide you with names, dates of life events, and places, these narratives can reveal motives for migration, explanations of brief marriages, or descriptions of an ancestor's personality. Oral histories can offer information that traditional records may not provide. |

The American Slave Narratives –

by Franklin Smith

Clayton Library has added a valuable set of American slave narratives to its collection. With the help of the Clayton Library Friends (CLF) the 41 volume set, The American Slave: A Composite Autobiography by George P. Rawick, is now available for those researching slavery era ancestors. The set is located in Clayton's USA section under call number: 305.567 A512 USA.

History

The American Slave: A Composite Autobiography consists of 41 volumes of over 2,500 autobiographies and biographical sketches chronicling the lives of formerly enslaved African-Americans. In addition to oral interviews the narratives include biographical information from newspapers and other print sources. The collection of narratives by former slaves was conducted by the Federal Writers Project, a department of the Works Project Administration, from 1936-1939. The slave narratives are the most comprehensive resource available documenting first-hand accounts of slavery's survivors in their own words. They consist of the original 19 volumes published in 1972 and 22 supplemental volumes published in 2 series from 1977-1979.

Since their publication, scholars have relied heavily on the narratives to provide insight into the culture, social customs, and traditions of the enslaved. However, to their descendants they are a treasure chest of priceless genealogical information identifying spouses, children, parents, siblings, grandparents, birthplaces, places lived, and slaveholders.

Rawick, George P. (general editor), The American Slave: A Composite Autobiography. Westport, Conn. : Greenwood Press, 1972-1979. Print (Clayton 305.567 A512 USA)

What The Narratives might reveal about your ancestors

To insure consistency, the WPA created 20 standard questions from which to conduct interviews. Interviewees' responses varied depending on which questions the interviewer asked, the person's recollection, and their willingness to respond. The questions can be divided into four major categories.

- Genealogical
Their family - Parents, siblings, grandparents, spouses, and children.
Their slaveholders . identity, family, movement, and neighbors.
- Social customs and traditions during slavery
Marriage, health, religion, death/burial, housing, diet, and entertainment.
- Impact of slavery on their lives
Treatment, punishment, separation from family, work, movement, and personal feelings on slavery.
- Life after the Civil War
Where and how they lived, family life after the War, and what happened to family.

The best two sources for searching The Narratives

Potts, Howard E. A Comprehensive Name Index for the American Slave. Westport, Conn. : Greenwood Press, 1997. Print (Clayton 305.567 A512 USA)

Pottsqindex is divided into three sections:

- Narrator index - The person being interviewed
Search for ancestor surnames, related surnames, and 1870 neighbor/community surnames.
- County & state index - Indexed to narrator
Look at everyone from your ancestor's county and surrounding counties.
- Master-slaveholder index
Look for slaveholder candidates or anyone living near your ancestors that were slaveholders in the 1850 and 1860 Slave Schedules.

The American Slave Narratives . continued from page 5

Terry, Brenda. Slaves II: A Deeper Look Into the WPA Slave Narrative: From a Genealogist Perspective. Dallas, TX : OneBorn Pub. Co., 1998. Print (Clayton 305.56709 T329 USA)

- Terry's book abstracts the original 17 volumes, indexed to narrator with birth date and location, interview state, any parents or grandparents named, and slaveholders identified.

Don't be discouraged if your ancestors aren't found in the narratives. Narratives of neighbors and others from surrounding communities and counties could provide valuable insight into the lives of your ancestors. The narratives can also be used in conjunction with other genealogical data such as DNA research. Just as they solve puzzles in your paper trails they may provide clues on how you and your genetic cousins are connected. Clayton Library staff member Franklin Smith is willing to answer any questions or assist you on how to use the narratives.

Volunteer Opportunities --

The Clayton Library is supported by a wonderful group of dedicated volunteers. If you would like to join them in any of these areas or have questions, contact Elsa Schmieder, Director of Volunteers, or Steven Bychowski, the Clayton Library Volunteer Coordinator, at Steven.Bychowski@houston.tx.gov, 832-393-2600. We look forward to working with you!

The Clayton Library Friends refreshments team helps provide snacks and refreshments for any of our quarterly Clayton Library Friends meetings or other library or CLF events. You can contribute on a one-time or an ongoing basis. Elsa Schmieder is the coordinator.

Shelving Assistant

Shelving books and giving limited reference assistance. Training is provided. The typical time commitment requested for shelving volunteers is a 2-hour shift one day per week. The next training class is scheduled for Monday, February 17, 10:30am-12:30pm at the Clayton Library main building.

Microprint Desk and Clayton House Welcome Desk

The duties include greeting visitors, giving limited reference help, and assisting with microfilm readers and printers. Training is provided for all duties. Helpful skills would include general experience in genealogical research, basic computer skills, and familiarity with microfilm readers and printers. Volunteers typically cover one 2-hour shift each week or one 4-hour Saturday shift each month. Scheduling is flexible.

THE CLAYTON ADVOCATE deadline for the May 2020 issue is April 25, 2020.

We welcome any articles related to Clayton Library and/or its collections.

Clayton Library:

Ideal Meeting Place for Records Preservation –

Jessica Horne Collins

As family historians, our reason for visiting Clayton Library is usually research. We spend a great deal of time with Clayton's books, periodicals, microfilm, or online databases. We may also visit for educational programs or to use the photo or slide scanners. But have you considered Clayton as a meeting place for records preservation?

I discovered a letter written by my 4th great-grandfather on eBay last fall. I purchased it, but the fragile 1850s document needed the care of an archivist. I contacted my friend Rachael Altman, Director/Archivist at the Carnegie History Center in Bryan, Texas, and we arranged a meetup at Clayton Library one Thursday evening. Clayton's newly-remodeled first floor with its ample lighting, dust-free tables, and temperature-controlled environment was the perfect spot to work on the document and encapsulate it in a protective covering.

Librarian Becky Grimes located archival gloves for us when Rachael couldn't find hers, and librarian Melissa Hayes offered tips as we pondered over some of the more difficult handwriting. As I get deeper into the letter's transcription, Clayton Library's books about early American handwriting will also be key to this project.

Thank you, Becky, Melissa, and Clayton Library, for being a valuable resource for all types of genealogy projects.

Archivist Rachael Altman completes preservation work on a 19th century letter in Clayton Library's newly-remodeled first floor.

Encapsulating the fragile letter was made easier in Clayton's new collaboration areas.

Tidbits --

From Dick Eastman's blog . For years, genealogists learned that anything published prior to 1923 is now considered to be in the public domain.. In other words, there are no copyrights on these older works and they may be copied or reproduced freely. Starting on January 1, 2020, anything published in 1924 (or anything published prior to 1925) is now considered to be in the public domain.

Clayton Library Friends will be at NGS May 20-23 in Salt Lake City having their booth promoting Clayton Library. We will not be bringing Donated-Duplicate books to this conference, so there will be no selling. But if you are attending the conference, please stop by to let the volunteer(s) have a break and stretch their legs. It is VERY MUCH appreciated!

Clayton Volunteer Recognition –

The Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon was held in December, with a great turnout. It's always a great time -- with food, fellowship, and fun! Congratulations to John Dorroh (Above and Beyond), Bob Olsen (100 Club), and Mary Hollis (100 Club) on receiving their awards.

In Memoriam –

It is with great sadness that we tell you that Marje Harris, our Clayton Library Manager from 1996 to 2006 passed away on December 22nd after a brief illness that began on Thanksgiving. She worked for the Houston Public Library for 34 years . 30 of those years at Clayton Library.

Charles Landon ‘Chuck’ Chambers passed away on October 31st. He was on our Clayton Library Friends Executive Board as Volunteer Coordinator from 1999-2001.

Several of the Clayton Library Friends members have lost their husbands recently. Dianne Kirk's husband, John Peter Kirk, passed away in December. And we just learned of the death of Emily Chile's husband, Jerry Edmond Chiles, in June of 2018. Our condolences to both Dianne and Emily on the death of their husbands.
